Posted on May 31st, 2016 by Kirk McElhearn I recently looked at how you can get rid of duplicate files on your Mac.

Select all files and press Command+backspace Restart your Mac Note: We recommend that you remove the insides of these folders, but not the folders themselves.. How to delete user log files?Why would anyone want to delete user logs on Mac? First, deleting outdated logs may speed up some of your apps.. Type in ~/Library/Logs and hit Enter to proceed to this folder (pay attention to the use of “~” — this will ensure that you're cleaning user log files, not the system log files).. We've got two ways to do it: the manual way and the CleanMyMac X way How to clear log files on a Mac manually Open Finder and select 'Go to Folder' in the Go menu.

Mac Library Mail Folder Huge Box Unhide Library Folder Mac What are log files and what do they do? Log files are a journal of system parameters and entries describing everything that takes place on your Mac.. Optional step: You can highlight & copy everything to a different folder in case anything goes wrong.. Second, however small they are, logs still take space on your disk And lastly, outdated logs could potentially cause software conflicts.. But when you need to diagnose a problem, log files are an indispensable invention.. Also note that some system applications, like Mail, have their own logs stored elsewhere.. May 29, 2015 As you can see the system folder is huge - 229GB!! This has actually grown by 5GB since i deleted some stuff.. User logs are a part of your user profile They are stored at: ~/Library/Logs Mac Library Mail Folder Huge Box You should know that deleting user logs is not an everyday operation..
